

Sgt. Kenneth Howard
Greenfield 2221048
RAFVR

Kenneth Greenfield was a 19-year-old Welsh Lancaster mid-upper gunner who was killed along with the rest of his crew during a raid in central Germany just seven weeks before the war ended.

He was part of the crew of Lancaster LM260 LE-S, of 630 Squadron, which was one of six lost in the raid on the city of Würzburg on the night of 16/17 March 1945. It was a bombing raid that destroyed an estimated 90 per cent of the city and killed up to 5,000 people.

He and his crew were taking part in their 13th operation with 630, their Lancaster being one of 225 from 5 Group that carried out this devastating attack. They had taken off from East Kirkby at 1737 hours and are believed to have been shot down four hours later, crashing near the village of Moos.

Kenneth came from the Canton area of Cardiff and was the son of Robert and Gladys Greenfield. He and his crew were buried locally but were later reinterred in Durnbach War Cemetery.

The others who died were the pilot P/O Donald Plumb, flight engineer Sgt. Peter Ackland, navigator Flt. Sgt. Arthur Michaels, bomb-aimer Flt. Sgt. John Croucher, wireless operator Sgt. Roy Jeffery and rear gunner Sgt. John Baker. All had joined 630 Squadron in January 1945 and were killed six weeks after the first of their 13 operations.

His name can be found on panel 042.
