

Flt. Sgt. Edward
George Walker
1331539 RAFVR

Edward Walker was a bomb-aimer from

Essex who was killed along with the rest of his crew when their aircraft was shot down into the North Sea while returning from a raid on Cologne.

He was part of the crew of Lancaster I ME731 CF-S of 625 Squadron which fell victim to a night-fighter at around 0302 hours on 21 April 1944, crashing into the sea off West Kapelle in Holland. His aircraft was one of 357 Lancasters and Mosquitoes which took part in the raid on the Rhineland city. It was one of only four lost in a raid which caused great destruction to the already-heavily bombed city.

Edward and his crew had taken off from RAF Kelstern at 2347 hours and he was the only body recovered; he is now buried in Bergen-op-Zoom Canadian War Cemetery in Holland. He lived in Ilford, Essex, with his wife, Anne, and was the 33-year-old son of Henry and Lucy Walker.

The others who died were the pilot Flt. Sgt. Denzil Bishop, flight engineer Sgt. Tom Burke, navigator F/O William Jarvis, wireless operator Sgt. John Knott, mid-upper gunner Sgt. Harold Munns and rear gunner Sgt. Christopher Jelley.

His name can be found on panel 110.
